

No End Seen In Phone Strike

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 14.—(UP)—Both the Indiana Bell Telephone Co. and the CIO Communications Workers appeared ready to battle on into the fall over a back-to-work agreement, and union spokesmen today added new fuel to the fires of disagreement by charging the utility planned to fire more strikers.

Mrs. Mae Mann, Indiana CWA director, charged a Bell spokesman said additional strikers arrested during the violence ridden walkout besides the 20 already reported as fired might lose their jobs for "personal misconduct."

Bell officials denied they had full blown firings in mind. They said no person, including two CWA bargaining committee members and three local presidents, were dismissed without a thorough investigation.

The issue of firings, the lone stumbling block to a settlement which would allow 6,900 workers to return to their jobs, apparently had the backing of union membership.

John Crull, CWA International vice-president, said members said they "will stay out until the snow flies, if necessary, to support the union's demand for arbitration of firing cases."

Bell spokesmen said those dismissed had been sent letters informing them of their loss of employment more than a week ago, and could have appealed to the National Labor Relations board. Crull countered with a statement Bell had no right to "fire strikers without recourse to arbitration" and without giving them "any reasonable opportunity to defend themselves."

It was indicated any additional firings would concern persons against whom affidavits have been sworn out. Union officials said they had no exact figures on the number of persons arrested since the walkout began 55 days ago.

Demos To Seek Farm Belt Votes

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—(INS)—Democratic leaders of the Midwest agreed today that next year's congressional elections will be fought on the farmlands.

The party's Midwest conference, consisting of national committeemen and committeewomen and the state chairman and vice chairmen from 15 states in the nation's midlands, met Sunday night and voted unanimously to keep the organization intact.

There had been talk of disbanding. The group voted to stage another meeting in the spring to gird for next year's congressional battles.

Speakers at Sunday night's meeting emphasized that the party must make an all-out attempt to capture the farm vote. They said that farmers were discouraged and fearful concerning falling income while watching their own expenditures rise.

Chairman of the conference was former Nebraska National Committeeman James D. Quigley and secretary was Iowa State Chairman Jake More.

Both men urged that the party lay aside sectional differences and concentrate on building a farm program which will attract the rural votes.

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson of New Mexico, former secretary of agriculture, said the farmers forsook the Democrats in recent prosperity, but, now that times are going hard, they "remember their redeemer."

Sen. Mike Monroney of Oklahoma drew a dismal picture of economic trends. He said that "even the men who play the stock market don't have confidence."

He said that economic weather, like the natural weather, blows from west to east, and the signs of the future can be seen in Butte, Dallas and Kansas City, like "a old front, moving eastward."

PLAN OBSERVANCE

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 14.—

(INS)—Hoosier newspapermen gathered in Indianapolis today to draw plans for the 1954 sesquicentennial observance marking the founding of Indiana's first newspaper.

The state-wide observance will commemorate the 150th anniversary of the Indiana Gazette, published by Elihu Stout in 1804 at Vincennes.

A 15-member executive panel will consider preliminary suggestions for the press celebration, which were prepared by a planning committee last May after the Indiana General Assembly adopted a resolution calling for the observance.

Included in the proposals are dedication of Stout's original printing shop, formal opening of a new journalism building at Indiana University, and designation of an Indiana Press Day for next year's State Fair.

LOOKING... AT LIFE

BY ERICH BRANDEIS

Here in America, when I want something badly enough, I usually manage to get it by hook or by crook.

So I am not too perturbed about the dispatch that just came out of London that we won't have any space travel for many years to come, because it's too expensive.

A bunch of scientists, including some Americans, met at Oxford under the auspices of the Royal Society for Improving Natural Knowledge and found that our kids, both young and old may as well forget about space travel for a long time. Nobody they said, has enough money to pay for that mode of locomotion.

These scientists simply don't know our United States public. They don't realize that the more expensive a thing is the better we like it. Take a Broadway show. It may be awful. Nobody would ordinarily go to see it. But raise the prices of the tickets sky-high and make believe they are hard to get. Ballyhoo the show. Bingo, everybody wants to see it and pretty soon you won't be able to get any tickets for five or more money.

We had a little experience like that on our vacation trip. There is a very lovely resort up in New England. I won't mention its name (except privately) because I don't want to attract any more business to it. The place is packed.

Originally, people went there only in winter because the skiing is excellent up there. But the resort was open also in summer and fall.

Four years ago, my wife and I took an automobile trip and stopped at this resort. There were about 12 people there and the owners gave us a wonderful suite of rooms, including meals at something like $14 a day—I forget the exact amount.

So, we went there again this year. The place was jammed. They were turning folks away by the carload.

But I had made a reservation, so they took us in. But now the rate was $49 a day and all we

"I've got a big hand," countered Miss Brash. "Maybe you shouldn't have jumped to six spades. And besides you haven't been set yet."

"That's because I haven't even played to the first trick yet," Mr. Champion growled.

It did indeed look like the chances for seven were slim. There would have to be a lucky break in the trump suit, with four trumps outstanding including the queen and jack. And even if the trumps were 2-2 it appeared that a 4-1 heart break would wreck the hand.

Mr. Champion got over the first hurdle by good luck and over the second by good play. The opening lead was the nine of clubs and dummy's ace won. Mr. Champion discarded a small heart.

Now it he had taken two rounds of trumps and then depended on the hearts breaking 3-2, he would have lost his contract. Instead, he took precautions against the hearts breaking 4-1 and as you see that was a necessary play.

Beginning at trick two, he cashed the ace of diamonds, led a small diamond and ruffed it. Then he cashed the king of spades and led a small heart.

Now he led to dummy's hearts, played the good heart, nine of diamonds and got two more hearts. He had a heart of hearts and ruffed it. "Now," said Miss Brash, "you feel silly crying and crying when the hand is down all the time."

BIG RED

Khrushchev up to First Secretary of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, the post Premier Georgi Malenkov resigned when he succeeded Stalin. Observers believe that this appointment makes Khrushchev, who has headed the five-man Secretariat Committee since last March, the number two man in the Russian government.

WORLD SERIES box seats this year have gone up in price to $10 a copy. That just about puts the old beat-up grandstand in the same class as Opera's "Diamond Horseshoe."

Standing room at the Series remains at $4 which is still as tough on the pocketbook as it is on the feet.

The voice of authority in West Germany has taken on a soprano lilt—39 women were elected to that country's parliament.

An expert in things piscatorial declares that fish after being caught have a tendency to shrink in size. That even things since those that get caught become larger and larger.

The St. Louis Browns, deep in the American League, may take a home run to move 'em in the city.

The British cabinet men cuss the Suez canal. Zedok Dumkopf says they're on troubled waters.

A scientist says that fish live 1,500 feet below the surface in complete darkness. Makes 'em safe because your bait could sink and they couldn't see it.

The Clinton Homemakers Home Demonstration Club on Sept. 1, gathered at the Angwell Curtain Factory and were conducted through the factory, which proved to be very interesting to us. From there we went to the Coca Cola plant where Per, Rush talked to us and took us through the plant and treated us to a good Coca Cola.

Our next interesting stop was at the jail. We then went to the home of Mrs. Anna Mae Sutherland for a short business meeting with our president, Mrs. June Harbison. The hostess served cooling refreshments to 10 members and 3 children.

COINCIDENCE

They had the same doctor and each of the two nurses looking after them was named Mary Doyle. Each patient gave birth to a daughter and the babies were named Veronica.

BLANKET LOSS HARTFORD, Conn. (UP)—

John A. Crilly was pretty broken up over the loss of an old horse blanket. He said it has sentimental value for him. For 20 years he has carried it in the back seat of his car and before that he used it to cover his horse. "I wouldn't have sold that blanket for a lot of money," he said.

BET DEBT FINALLY CATCHES UP WITH LOSER

HONG KONG (UP)—Way back in 1933, Chan Chi made a bet with Lam Kau, and lost—and, according to Lam, welshed.

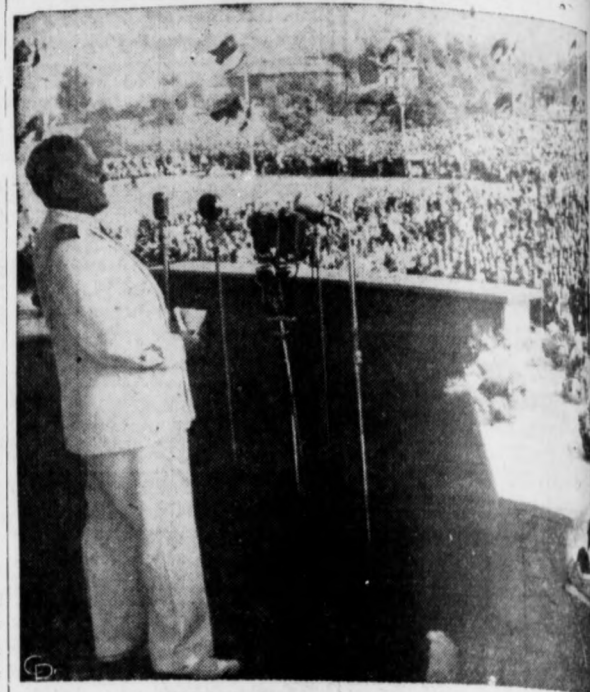

Both men forgot what the bet was about, but when Lam met Chan on the street the other day, he remembered the debt had never been paid. The ensuing argument ended in a fight.

The magistrate had a sense of justice. Chan, the alleged welsher, was fined HK$25 (US$4.15), or HK$5 more than the bet. Both were required to put up bond for future good behavior.

CULTURE AL FRESCO

BUDAPEST (UP)—"Cultural brigades," organized in every county of Hungary, "greet with songs, dances and music those who work well and encourage those who lag behind," the government newspaper MTI said. Such brigades also "present harvesting peasants with a short cultural program in the fields," the agency report said.

SO YOU DON'T LIKE HOT WEATHER

If the hot weather has been getting you down here's a picture to cool you off. The thermometer registered 103 degrees above zero—on the outside—and 70 degrees below zero—on the inside—when this frosty picture was made of an ice-covered experimental automobile in the "cold room" in the Studebaker engineering laboratories in South Bend, Ind. The vehicle is merely undergoing one of the many grueling tests to which Studebaker engineers subject cars to meet the stringent demands of driving conditions anywhere.

French Attack Red Stronghold

HANOI, Indochina, Sept. 14.—(UP)—French Union paratroopers drove into an enemy mountain stronghold today to stall a big Communist-led Viet Minh autumn offensive while diplomats in nearby Cambodia tried to wriggle out of a political blunder.

The paratroopers began attacking Communist concentrations around Chochoi, about 32 miles south of Hanoi, Sunday and "neutralized" three villages which had been held by the rebels.

Several French Union battalions, supported by Bearcat fighters, spread out along the Day river on the south edge of the Viet Nam defense perimeter in an effort to wipe out Red salients before the heavy fall fighting begins.

As the French forces carried on their "limited offensive" in Viet Nam, Cambodian Foreign Minister Sirik Matak sent a cable to U. S. Senate Majority Leader William Knowland to test fears that Cambodia might take a neutral attitude toward the Communists.
